The Twin Island Regatta

The Twin Island Regatta was conceived in 1979 as a race around the two islands, Angel and Alcatraz, in either direction. The race was to be held on the day before opening day, usually the last weekend in April. Then chef, Fernand Loing, had the Twin Island Trophy created to have the best finishing SYC member engraved on it. This resulted in the sometimes used nickname “The Chefs Special”.

Today the Race has two divisions, spinnaker and non-spinnaker. It starts from a Race Committee boat in the Knox area, then a port rounding of a buoy by Yellow Bluff after which the skippers choose to round the two islands clockwise or counterclockwise, back to a starboard rounding of the Yellow Bluff buoy, and a finish off the club race deck..

DECKER TROPHY

In 2003 Rod Decker, a SYC member and racer, proposed adding a trophy to the Twin Island Regatta by creating a series adding two more races, one in the summer and one in the fall. He presented the Decker trophy to the club for the best overall SYC member finishers of the three races to be engraved on it.

75th ANNIVERSARY JOHN WILLIAMS AWARD

This is an additional award component to the Twin Island Series that began as part of the club’s 75th anniversary focus on its origins: “founded by youth, benefiting youth”. The intent is to foster the interest and joy of sailing in the next generation.

Any sailboat that signs up for all three races of the Twin Island Series will be eligible to compete for the trophy. It will be awarded to the boat/youths in each division with the best series record of scored races. An officially entered sailboat’s race will be scored in the series when both of the following criteria are met:

1. There is at least one youth on board for the entire race; this does not need to be the same youth / youths for each race.
A youth is any person 18 years of age or younger on the day of the race who is physically capable of assisting in the operation of the boat.
2. The names and dates of birth of all youths on board have been declared for each race. Declaration must be submitted by the skipper to the Race organizers prior to the awards ceremony.

The 75th Anniversary Twin Island Trophy will be presented after the final race of the series. Daily awards will also be given to all declared youth participants at the presentations following each individual race.

Note that each skipper is wholly and solely responsible for their charges (youth participants). The club does not assume any role or responsibility in the skipper/youth relationship.
